NO. 16/17 SEMINOLES TRAVEL TO PLAY AT CLEMSON ON TUESDAY NIGHT AT 9:00 P.M.

Florida State, which has won a school-record tying seven consecutive ACC games, travels to play at Clemson on Tuesday, February 19, 2019 at 9:00 p.m. at Littlejohn Coliseum in Clemson, S.C. The Seminoles enter Tuesday's game looking to win their school record eighth consecutive ACC game – they have won each of their games since defeating Clemson, 77-68, on January 22, 2019 at the Donald L. Tucker Center in Tallahassee. Florida State is 4-0 at home and 3-0 on the road in ACC play during their current seven-game ACC winning streak. After beginning their conference season with a 1-4 mark, the Seminoles have improved to 8-4 in ACC play as they begin play against the Tigers. Florida State's seven-game winning streak marks its longest ACC winning streak since also winning seven games from January 10, 2012 (at Virginia Tech, 63-59) through February 4, 2012 (at Virginia, 58-55) during the 2011-12 season. The Seminoles won 12 of their final 15 ACC games of the 2011-12 season, finished in second place in the ACC standings and swept through the ACC Tournament with wins over Miami, Duke and North Carolina to win the first ACC Championship in school history. Florida State's game at Clemson is its second of three consecutive road games and is sandwiched in-between a win at Georgia Tech (February 16, 69-47) and its only game of the season against North Carolina (February 23 at Chapel Hill, N.C.). Following the Seminoles' game at Clemson, the Seminoles will travel to play the Tar Heels before playing their final three home games of the season against Notre Dame (February 25), NC State (March 2) and Virginia Tech (March 5).

FLORIDA STATE'S ACC RECORD

Florida State enters Tuesday's game at Clemson with an 8-4 ACC record and seven consecutive conference victories. The Seminoles are 8-4 after starting conference play with a 1-4 mark and three consecutive league losses including a two-point loss at the buzzer to then No. 1 Duke (80-78) at home in the Donald L. Tucker Center. Florida State's winning streak began against Clemson on January 22 at home and includes six wins by double figures (including two by 22 points) and a victory over No. 16 Louisville in overtime at home (February 9, 80-75).

NOTING FLORIDA STATE'S 20 OVERALL WINS AND EIGHT ACC VICTORIES...

...Florida State enters Tuesday's game against Clemson with 20 wins for the school record tying fourth consecutive season. The Seminoles also won at least 20 games in four consecutive years during the 2009, 2010, 2011 and 2012 seasons also under 17th-year Head Coach Leonard Hamilton. The Seminoles averaged 23.8 wins per season from 2009-12 and are currently averaging 22.3 victories per season during the current four-year span of success;

...Florida State enters Tuesday's game against Clemson with eight ACC wins for the 11th consecutive season. The Seminoles average 8.8 ACC wins per season since the start of the 2008-09 conference season and won at least 10 ACC games each season from 2009-12 with the school-record of 12 ACC wins coming during their ACC Championship season in 2012.

HAMILTON AMONG THE ALL-TIME ACC VICTORY LEADERS

Seminole Head Coach Leonard Hamilton enters Tuesday's game against Clemson with 144 all-time ACC wins (seventh all-time) and 325 overall wins at an ACC school (eighth all-time). He needs only one victory to move into a tie for seventh place with Virginia legend Terry Holland with 326 overall victories. Hamilton needs only five victories to move into a tie for sixth place with Georgia Tech legend Bobby Cremins (149 all-time ACC wins).

LOOK FOR FLORIDA STATE TO...

...Defeat Clemson and earn a regular season series sweep of the Tigers for the eighth time since joining the ACC for the 1991-92 season. The Seminoles most recently earned a regular season sweep of the Tigers during the 2016-17 season. The Seminoles and the Tigers are permanent partners when it comes to ACC scheduling and play each other twice during the regular season;

...Defeat Clemson and win its school record eighth consecutive ACC game. The Seminoles tied their school record with seven consecutive ACC wins with its victory at Georgia Tech on Saturday (February 16, 69-47);

...Defeat Clemson and win its ninth ACC game of the season. The Seminoles most recently won nine ACC games last season when they finished conference play with a 9-9 record;

...Defeat Clemson and win its 21st game of the season. It would mark the third consecutive season and ninth time under Head Coach Leonard Hamilton the Seminoles have won at least 21 games in a season;

...Defeat Clemson and win its 21st game of the season on February 19 – the third earliest date the Seminoles would have reached the 21-win plateau. The Seminoles earned their 21st win on February 8, 2016 (during the 2015-16 season) and on February 14, 1970 (during the 1969-70 season).

ROAD WARRIORS IN ACC PLAY

Florida State enters Tuesday's game at Clemson with three consecutive ACC road wins – at Miami (January 27, 78-66), at Syracuse (February 5, 80-62) and at Georgia Tech (January 16, 69-47). The Seminoles already have more ACC road wins than they did all of last season (one, at Louisville) and are looking to win their fourth ACC road game of the 2018-19 season at Clemson. Florida State most recently earned five ACC road wins during the 2013-14 season and won a school record six ACC road games (6-2 record away from Tallahassee) during the 1991-92 season – its first in the ACC.

FLORIDA STATE WITH CONSECUTIVE 20+ POINT ACC VICTORIES

Florida State enters Tuesday's game at Clemson having won both of its last two ACC games by exactly 22 points – by an 88-66 margin over Wake Forest (February 13) and by a 69-47 margin at Georgia Tech (February 16). It marks the second time in school history the Seminoles have won consecutive ACC games by 20 or more points with the last two times coming during the 2016-17 season with wins over Clemson (109-61, +48) and NC State (96-71, +25).

FLORIDA STATE'S MARGIN OF VICTORY DURING THEIR CURRENT SEVEN GAME-WINNING STREAK

Florida State has outscored its opponents during its current seven-game winning streak by a total of 98 points – an average of 14.0 points in winning seven consecutive games. The Seminoles have earned two 20+-point margins of victory (over Wake Forest and Georgia Tech) and double figure margins of victory at Syracuse (+18), at Miami (+12) and at Georgia Tech (+10).

Florida State's Margins of Victory

Games	Points	Average	Notes
7-Game Win Streak	98	+14.0	+22 vs. Wake Forest and Georgia Tech
8 ACC wins	104	+13.0	FSU with 6 of 8 ACC wins by double figures
12 ACC Games	71	+5.9	FSU with an 8-4 ACC record
25 Overall Games	239	+9.6	FSU with 14 of 20 wins by double figures

FLORIDA STATE GOES TO THE BOARDS AGAINST GEORGIA TECH

Florida State earned 50 rebounds – 10 offensive and 40 defensive – in its 69-47 win over Georgia Tech on Saturday in Atlanta. It marked just the seventh time in an ACC game in school history the Seminoles had earned 50 or more rebounds in a conference game. The Seminoles 50 rebounds against the Yellow Jackets is tied as the fourth highest team rebound total in an ACC game in school history.

FLORIDA STATE WITH DOUBLE FIGURE REBOUND MARGINS IN LAST TWO GAMES

Led by senior Christ Koumadje's career-high 12 rebounds in Florida State's victories over both Wake Forest and at Georgia Tech, the Seminoles have earned double figure rebounding margins in both wins. The Seminoles outrebounded by the Demon Deacons (43-27, +16) and the Yellow Jackets (50-38, +12) to earn their fifth and sixth double figure rebound margins of the season. Florida State holds a +5.0 rebound margin for the entire season and a +3.9 rebound margin in its ACC games.

SEMINOLES STEALING

Florida State has totaled seven steals in both of its last two games and have 36 steals in its last four games (9.0 spg). The Seminoles earned 11 steals in their wins at Syracuse (February 5) and against Louisville (February 9). Florida State's long arms, defensive abilities and defensive mentality have helped the Seminoles average 5.7 steals per game, 14.7 fast break points and 16.0 points off turnovers per game during its current seven-game winning streak.

FLORIDA STATE ON THE DEFENSIVE AGAINST GEORGIA TECH

Florida State limited Georgia Tech to 47 points, a .271 field goal shooting percentage and a .348 shooting mark from 3-point range in its 69-47 win over the Yellow Jackets on Saturday in Atlanta. The 47 points are the fewest the Seminoles have allowed to any opponent this season and are the fewest points they've allowed since holding Clemson to 41 in a 55-41 win over the Tigers on January 4, 2014. The .271 defensive field goal percentage was its best defensive effort of the season while the .348 defensive 3-point field goal percentage mark was the 15th time this season the Seminoles had held an opponent at or below a .348 mark from the 3-point line in a game.

FLORIDA STATE ON FIRE FROM THE 3-POINT LINE

Florida State made nine 3-point field goals in its 69-47 victory over Georgia Tech on Saturday. The Seminoles are averaging 9.3 made 3-point field goals in their last four games after making 11 of 22 (.500 percent) in their 80-62 win at Syracuse (February 5). Led by sophomore M.J. Walker's 12 3-point field goals made and senior Terance Mann's .693 3-point shooting percentage (nine of 13) the Seminoles are averaging 9.0 made 3-point field goals and shooting .396 from the bonusphere during their current seven-game ACC winning streak.

FLORIDA STATE VS. CLEMSON – THE LAST GAME

Mfiondu Kabengele scored 12 of his 17 points in the second half and David Nichols added 16 points as Florida State halted a three-game slide with a 77-68 win over Clemson on January 22, 2019 at the Donald L. Tucker Center in Tallahassee. Nichols made four 3-pointers for the Seminoles. Florida State came into the game shooting 31.3 percent from beyond the 3-point arc but made 10 3-pointers against Clemson. The Seminoles' total of 10 3-pointers was the most for the Seminoles in an ACC game (up until that game). The Seminoles' veterans, as well as the newcomers, showed their fight. After it trailed for most of the game, Florida State used a 13-0 run to take a 63-55 lead with 6:50 left. The run was sparked by consecutive 3-pointers from RaiQuan Gray, Devin Vassell and Nichols and the Seminoles were in control the rest of the way. Aamir Simms scored 15 of his 18 points in the first half for Clemson which lost for the fourth time in its last five games. Elijah Thomas also had 17 points and 11 rebounds, his fifth double-double of the season.

.500 Senior Phil Cofer is shooting .500 from the 3-point line (five of 10) in the last two games.

.571 Freshman Devin Vassell is shooting .571 from the 3-point line (four of seven) in the last two games. He has made two 3-point field goals each in Florida State's victories over Wake Forest (February 13) and at Georgia Tech (February 16).

.621 Florida State recorded 17 assists on 25 made baskets in its win over Georgia Tech on Saturday. The Seminoles have recorded 113 assists on 182 baskets (.621 percent) during their current seven-game winning streak.

.625 Devin Vassell made two of three shots from the bonusphere in Florida State's victory over Georgia Tech on Saturday. He has hit multiple 3-points shots off the bench in consecutive games and is shooting .625 percent from three (five of eight) in his last three games.

.867 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele was a perfect four of four from the free throw line in Florida State's victory over Georgia Tech. During the Seminoles current seven-game winning streak, Kabengele is shooting .867 percent from the free throw line (26-30).

2 Two Seminoles – Trent Forrest and Christ Koumadje – have started each of the Seminoles' 24 games

4 Senior Christ Koumadje tied his career high with 12 rebounds against both Wake Forest and Georgia Tech. He has secured double digit rebounds in four games as a senior after totaling zero double figure rebounding games in his first three seasons.

6 Senior David Nichols made three of five 3-point shots in scoring nine points in Florida State's victory over Georgia Tech. He has multiple three pointers off the bench in six games this season.

20 Florida State is undefeated, 20-0, when it outscores its opponent.

35 Florida State's bench outscored Georgia Tech's bench by a 35-7 margin. In ACC play, Florida State's bench has outscored its opponents bench 397-154 (33.1-12.8).

78 Florida State outscored Georgia Tech by a 28-12 margin in the paint in its 69-47 win over the Yellow Jackets on Saturday in Atlanta. Over the last two games, Florida State has outscored its opponent 78-28 in the paint.

SEMINOLES HAVE HAD NINE DIFFERENT LEADING SCORERS

Freshman Devin Vassell led the Seminoles in scoring with 11 points in Florida State's 69-47 win over Georgia Tech on Saturday in Atlanta. It marked the NINTH different leading scorer for the Seminoles this season. The Seminoles have been led in scoring by redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele (nine times), senior Terance Mann (six times), junior Trent Forrest (three times), sophomore M.J Walker (three times), senior David Nichols (two times), senior PJ Savoy (two times), senior Phil Cofer (one time), senior Christ Koumadje (one time) and now Vassell (one time).

KOUMADJE DOUBLES UP BOTH WAKE FOREST AND GEORGIA TECH

Senior Christ Koumadje earned his first career double-double of 20 points and 12 rebounds in Florida State's victory over Wake Forest (February 13) and earned his second double-double of 10 points and 12 rebounds in the Seminoles' victory at Georgia Tech (February 16). It took Koumadje 109 games to earn his first career double and just one more game to earn his second career double-double.

THE LAST SEMINOLE WITH THREE CONSECUTIVE DOUBLE DOUBLES...

...Was NBA first round draft pick Jonathan Isaac who totaled consecutive double-doubles against North Carolina (Jan. 14, 2017, 17 points and 12 rebounds), Notre Dame (January 18, 2017, 23 points and 10 rebounds) and Louisville (January 21, 2017, 16 points and 10 rebounds). Isaac was the second one-and done player in school history and was the sixth overall selection of the Orlando Magic in the 2017 NBA Draft.

KOUMADJE IN HIS LAST TWO GAMES...

...Is averaging a double-double of 15.0 points and 12.0 rebounds per game;
 ...Has scored 30 points and is averaging 15.0 points scored per game. He totaled his season-high of 20 points in Florida State's victory over Wake Forest (January 13);
 ...Has pulled down 24 rebounds and is averaging 12.0 rebounds per game. He has totaled his career-high of 12 rebounds in both of Florida State's last two games;
 ...Is shooting .789 from the field and has 15 of his last 19 field goal attempts. He made 10 of 12 shots from the field (.833 percent) in Florida State's victory over Wake Forest (February 13);
 ...Has blocked five shots (2.5 bpg) with three blocked shots coming in Florida State's victory at Georgia Tech (February 16).

DEVIN VASELL COMES UP BIG AGAINST GEORGIA TECH

Freshman Devin Vassell scored his ACC career-high of 11 points, pulled down his ACC career-high of three rebounds and totaled his ACC career-high of two steals in Florida State's 69-47 win at Georgia Tech. He shot four of seven from the field and made two important first half 3-point shots to stake the Seminoles to a 34-23 halftime lead. Vassell, who is averaging 9.0 minutes played in the first 21 games of his career, was pressed into extended duty against the Yellow Jackets because of a first half injury to sophomore M.J. Walker only 4:11 into the game. He responded with nine first half points in nine first half minutes played.

VASELL SCORES GAME-WINNING BASKET IN WIN OVER CLEMSON IN FIRST MEETING OF SEMINOLES AND TIGERS

Guard Devin Vassell, who has made 14 3-point field goals in the first 21 games of his Florida State career, made the biggest long range shot of his short career to help lead the Seminoles past Clemson in the first matchup of the 2018-19 season between the Seminoles and the Tigers on January 22, 2019. He scored what proved to be the game-winning basket against the Tigers with 9:11 remaining in the game to give the Seminoles a 56-55 lead – a lead they never relinquished in winning the game.

Mfiondu Kabengele By The Numbers

.500 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele is shooting .500 from the 3-point line (nine of 18) during Florida State's current seven-game winning streak.

.833 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele is shooting .833 from the free throw line (10 of 12) in the last three games.

4 Redshirt sophomore forward Mfiondu Kabengele was a perfect four of four (1.00 percent) from the 3-point line in scoring 18 points against Syracuse (February 5). He became just the eighth player in Florida State's ACC history to be perfect from the 3-point line in four or more attempts.

4 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele has already scored 20 points more in more games this season (four) than he did in 34 games as a redshirt freshman (zero).

6.0 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele is scoring an average of 6.0 points per game more this season (13.2) than he did last season (7.2).

10 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele has at least one blocked shot in each game during the Seminoles' current seven-game winning streak, has two blocked shots in three of the last six games and is averaging 1.4 blocked shots per game since blocking one shot in Florida State's 77-68 victory over Clemson (January 22).

10 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele was a perfect 10 of 10 from the free throw line and totaled 24 points in Florida State's victory over North Florida on December 19, 2018.

12.1 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele is shooting 12.1 percentage points better from the free throw line this season (.778) than he did as a redshirt freshman (.657).

16 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele has already scored in double figures more times this season (16) in 25 games than he did in 34 games as a redshirt freshman (10).

19.9 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele is averaging a career-high 19.9 minutes played per game despite not having started a single game for the Seminoles this season.

98 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele enters Tuesday's game against Clemson as Florida State's leader in both free throws made (98) and free throws attempted (126). He is shooting a career-high .778 from the free throw line.

330 Redshirt sophomore Mfiondu Kabengele has already scored more points this season (330) in 25 games than he did in 34 games during his redshirt freshman season (245).

KABENGELE AS FLORIDA STATE'S LEADING SCORER COMING OFF OF THE BENCH

With a team-leading and career-high 13.2 points per game scoring average, Mfiondu Kabengele is the only player in the ACC who has not started ANY games and is leading his team in scoring. The last Division I player to lead his team in scoring without having started a game was Reginal Johnson of Alcorn State who averaged 15.6 points in 32 games (all off of the bench) during the 2016-17 season.

FORREST LOOKING TO REACH 150 CAREER STEALS

Junior Trent Forrest, who has played in 94 career games, enters Tuesday's game at Clemson with 147 career steals. He is looking to become just the 13th player in school history with at least 150 career steals. Forrest has 14 steals during the Seminoles' current seven-game winning streak and is just three steals shy of setting a personal single-season best with 54 steals. He totaled 53 steals in leading the Seminoles as a junior.

FORREST LEADING THE SEMINOLES FROM THE POINT GUARD POSITION

Junior Trent Forrest earned three assists against zero turnovers in 20 minutes of playing time in Florida State's victory over Georgia Tech on Saturday. In his last four games, Forrest has 21 assists against only three turnovers in his last 118 minutes played for an assist:turnover ratio of 7:1 and an average of only one turnover every 39 minutes played in victories at Syracuse, against Louisville, against Wake Forest and at Georgia Tech.

MORE ON FORREST'S LACK OF TURNOVERS

Junior guard Trent Forrest, who enters Tuesday's game at Clemson ranked fourth in the ACC in steals (2.0 spg), fourth in the ACC in assist:turnover ratio (2:1) and tenth in the ACC in assists (3.9) had helped the Seminoles to 20 wins for the third time in three seasons during his career. In leading the Seminoles to overtime wins over ranked LSU (November 28, 79-76) and Louisville teams (February 9, 80-75), Forrest has played all 10 minutes in both overtime periods in both wins and has not committed a single turnover as Florida State rallied to win both games.

NICHOLS PLAYING WELL AT THE POINT GUARD POSITION

Senior David Nichols has a 4.3 assist:turnover ratio (13 assists against only three turnovers) in 50 minutes of playing time in the last four games -- all victories for the Seminoles.

FORREST AND NICHOLS – A STRONG 1-2 PUNCH AT THE POINT GUARD POSITION

Guards Trent Forrest and David Nichols – who handle the vast majority of the Seminoles' point guard responsibilities – have a combined assist:turnover ratio of 3.4:1 (57 total assists to 17 total turnovers) during the Seminoles' current seven-game winning streak.

The Game Is Far From Over For 70-Year-Old Leonard Hamilton

By Andrea Adelson

ESPN.com

January 11, 2019

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. -- He still feels the words all these decades later, so intensely, that he closes his eyes, puts his hand to his heart and pauses.

"Every time I say this, I get emotional about it," Leonard Hamilton says quietly.

It is 1974, and Austin Peay has just put together back-to-back NCAA tournament berths. Head coach Lake Kelly starts to attract attention from other schools across the country. Hamilton, then a 26-year-old assistant on staff and the lead recruiter, decides to see university president Joe Morgan with a pressing question.

Hamilton asks Morgan whether he would be the next head coach at Austin Peay if Kelly leaves. To this day, Hamilton does not know what gave him the audacity to go see Morgan and ask. But that audacity is the reason he is sitting in his Florida State office, retelling the story.

"He looked at me," Hamilton recalls. "He says, 'Leonard, nothing would make me happier than for you to be the head coach at Austin Peay. But I'm retiring in two years, and for you to be the first black head coach in the Ohio Valley Conference -- I don't think I can make that happen.'"

His eyes begin to well up.

"Whew," Hamilton says, letting out a deep, heavy sigh. "Where did I get that from? To think that I'm going to be a head coach at Austin Peay when there were no black head coaches hardly anywhere. But I hadn't even thought about being black. I felt I could get the job done.

"Every time I think about it, it does something to me. That cut my guts out."

It cut so badly, Hamilton quit coaching. But for a providential phone call from Joe B. Hall at Kentucky, Hamilton could very well be a salesman today in North Carolina. Instead, he built programs into winners at nontraditional basketball outposts, accepting this was the best avenue for him to take to maximize his impact.

He did it first at Oklahoma State and Miami. For the past 17 seasons, he has done it at Florida State, where he is the school's all-time winningest coach. Going into the No. 13 Seminoles' game against No. 1 Duke on Saturday, Florida State ranks No. 4 in the ACC in wins since the start of the 2005-06 season. Hamilton himself straddles a world uniquely his own: old enough to remember a time when black head coaches were extremely rare, but modern enough to lead an ACC program to the Elite Eight while sending a succession of players to the NBA.

After that Elite Eight run in last year's tournament quieted a growing number of critics in Tallahassee, he's arguably more relevant today than at any other point in his tenure -- with yet another team poised to make a deep tournament run.

"You're not playing against a team, you're playing against a program, and a program has certain values," says Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski. "His teams play together. They're very athletic, and they play outstanding defense, so I would anticipate we would see the same thing we've seen for a number of years from Leonard, because he's an outstanding coach."

His record says as much. To understand how Hamilton has done it, you first have to understand how his varied experiences shaped him not as a coach, but as a person.

Hamilton grew up in segregated North Carolina, poor, in a family of eight living in a four-room house with no running water, indoor plumbing or air-conditioning. "I didn't live on a street," he says. "I lived on a path between two streets." His father was a truck driver who moonlighted as a bootlegger to make ends meet. His mother was a domestic worker.

They grew up so close to their church, the Hamilton's could hear the piano playing inside their home. Hamilton sang in the choir, and his connection to the church and God remains a central part of his life. He owns a gospel music label and believes a "hand of protection" from above has guided him.

He got in trouble growing up, but always found a way out -- especially through sports. In 1969, he became the first black men's basketball player at UT-Martin. When he arrived in Martin, Tennessee, he found the bus had dropped him nearly two miles from campus. Armed with a heavy trunk and a large duffel bag, Hamilton would alternate dragging his trunk and bag along the street until he got to the dormitories.

When he met his teammates, he realized some of them had never played with a black player. His coach had never coached a black player. This was nothing new to Hamilton, who used his likability, gregarious personality and exceptional communication skills to endear himself to those around him. His high self-confidence helped, too. He also was a terrific player, known for his tenacious defense. That would soon become a hallmark of his own basketball teams.

"There were seven of us that came in as junior college transfers, and the best way to describe how Leonard handled it is in his second year he was named Mr. UTM, which was unheard of in the late 1960s for an African-American to be accepted like he was," says former UTM teammate Rick Leeper. "His personality gets him past that. Even the ones that had not played with any black athletes had no problem with him at all. Of course, that's the great thing about athletics. We're color blind."

Hamilton's first plan out of college was to join the Marines. But that changed when he landed a job as a graduate assistant at Austin Peay. That changed again when Kelly lost an assistant and decided to give Hamilton much more responsibility to help fill the void. At the time, Hamilton was married with a young child and had adopted one of his younger brothers to provide a better opportunity than what they had back home.

Hamilton gladly accepted the challenge, realizing this was his chance to prove exactly what he could do. He meticulously organized his schedule, put in long hours and developed a trademark work ethic his players still marvel at today. Soon he found himself on his first trip to New York City, staying up all night talking to the mother of a top recruit after turning the clock in her apartment back several hours to keep the conversation going.

That recruit, Fly Williams, ended up becoming the greatest player in Austin Peay history. But Hamilton had his work cut out for him beyond the recruiting trail. Only a few years older than his players, Hamilton had to approach his job differently than a more veteran assistant. On top of that, it was the first time many of the players on the team had played for a black coach.

"A lot of us black players, we didn't quite get it early," says Howard Jackson, who played for Hamilton at Austin Peay. "But the example he was setting is what we needed, and we became better people because of the exposure we had with him. He always held us accountable, and he held us accountable as much academically as he did in basketball. In coaching, it's very difficult for some to be honest with the players they're dealing with. He was always honest with me. He told me what I needed to hear, not what I wanted to hear."

Kelly also served as a guiding force for Hamilton, especially in the way he cared for and treated his players. Jackson was involved in a devastating accident in the summer of 1972 -- his career ended when he fell more than 80 feet through a skylight while working a summer job at a steam plant -- in which he broke both his legs. But Kelly cared for Jackson like a son, allowing him to stay in his home, driving him to class, pushing his wheelchair, taking him to doctor appointments. Hamilton watched with awe and vowed whenever he became a head coach, he would treat his players with the care Kelly always showed.

But when would that opportunity come?

In that office with Morgan in 1974, Hamilton felt defeated in a way he never expected. Race had played a role in his entire life, but he always found a way to break through barriers. Hearing those words from Morgan made him think maybe he couldn't break through them all.

He resigned the next day and moved to Charlotte, North Carolina, to work as a salesman for Dow Chemical. But back in Clarksville, Tennessee, Kelly had called then-Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall. "He told me Hamilton was too good of a coaching prospect to leave something that he had such a good future in," Hall said in a phone interview. So Hall called Hamilton for an interview.

Hamilton told him, point blank, "I'll be loyal to you. Nobody will outwork me, and I won't get you in trouble. But if you're not going to offer me this job, I'm going to go on back to Charlotte, and I want to be the No. 1 chemical salesman in the country."

Hall offered the job. Hamilton took it and left behind a note on his desk after a week at Dow Chemical that read, "I resign my position effective immediately. Thank you very much for the opportunity. Leonard Hamilton."

Whatever hurt he felt, he channeled into purpose. He was the first black assistant at storied Kentucky, a program that had only integrated five years earlier. Coaching here could get him a springboard to a head job, and in some ways affirmed the work he did at Austin Peay. But it would not be easy, at least at first. Both whites and blacks questioned why he was there -- whites because they were still uncomfortable with a black coach on the bench; blacks because he chose to work at a place that had never much cared for folks their color.

Hamilton did the only thing he knew: He worked, and he worked some more, recruiting high-profile players and excelling as a floor coach. The results would speak for him. Hamilton knew how to talk to people, but he also knew how to get people to trust him. Exacting and tough, but genuine and caring, Hamilton built a reputation as an indispensable part of Hall's staff. "When I hired him, I got a lot more than I expected," Hall says. "His work ethic is unequalled in the coaching profession. He never wastes a minute. He was that goal-oriented and that clear in his mind, how it would take 100 percent effort to achieve his goals. He never let an opportunity slip."

Hamilton spent 12 seasons at Kentucky, but head-coaching jobs at major programs remained elusive. In time, Hamilton realized he did not need those jobs to validate his work. Perhaps getting passed over for the Kentucky job in 1985 in favor of Eddie Sutton crystallized that for him.

Hamilton spent his career as the guy who just needed a chance. He had to find a program just like that.

"As a young assistant, I wanted me a great job, I wanted to be in a job where all the players are, but after a period of time, God reached down from heaven to say, you don't need one of those good jobs," Hamilton says. "In order for you to be significant in this basketball world, you need to take jobs that nobody else has been successful at. They're not hiring that many black people in the first place. Why does a good job in a good situation with great potential need you? So I started looking for jobs that had not been successful, jobs that had potential."

So he went to Oklahoma State in 1986 and took a program with a 37-year NCAA tournament drought back to the tournament. Then he went to Miami, which did not even field a team in the 1970s and most of the 1980s. He won there.

Then he went to the Washington Wizards, signing a five-year, $10 million contract -- more than he'd ever been paid on the collegiate level. He went 19-63 and got fired after one season. Hamilton is reticent to discuss much about that year, saying only, "I'm appreciative of the opportunity. Things have worked out for the Wizards and things have worked out for me."

When he decided to get back into college coaching, Hamilton thought Florida State provided the perfect fit. And for 17 years, he has won there too, and shows no signs of letting up at age 70.

"He's had to pave his own way," says longtime assistant Stan Jones, who has worked alongside Hamilton for 22 years. "That allows you to be the ultimate competitor, but it teaches you how to be a genuine professional because you have to connect a lot of dots other people aren't connecting for you. When you apply those lessons and you keep those connections over the course of your career, it allows you to continue to take situations from Oklahoma State to Miami to Florida State, and put your stamp on it, where other people can say he just followed this guy, or he got this because of this coaching tree he was under.

"He had to go out and compete for players. He had to compete for respect. He had to compete to show people he's the best at the job he's given. To some people, that motivates. To some people, it intimidates. For him, it's an absolute motivation."

Hamilton has done it with his relentless recruiting, following up every single phone call and tip he gets on possible prospects. He has done it with buy-in from players, who understand fully the No. 1 expectation is to play solid, tough, relentless defense.

That is especially true playing in conferences like the Big East and ACC, with traditional programs that have more advantages than his own. Hamilton has to recruit a specific player to fit his specific scheme, and though he has changed up his offense some over the years to allow for more flexibility and versatility, the commitment to defense is the standard that never changes.

"You can be a kid that can score 30 points, but if you're not going to play defense, you're not playing for him. It's that simple," says Alex Fraser, who starred for Hamilton at Miami. "Coach Ham and his staff believe defense is the benchmark where their teams are going to be."

Because Hamilton and his staff have great rapport with their players, they have maximized their potential. Hamilton is not a screamer, and he does not get in his players' faces, though he does have a glare that many who do not know Hamilton mischaracterize as anger or harshness. The glare is simply his way of showing his players he is locked in, and he expects them to be locked in the same way.

"Regardless how far they go in March Madness, one characteristic of his teams are the kids respect him and they play hard," says Sam Bowie, whom Hamilton recruited to Kentucky in the early 1980s. "That doesn't mean their shots are going to go in and they're going to win the ACC or they're even going to qualify for the tournament. But when you watch Leonard Hamilton's teams play, they play with discipline, they play hard and they respect their coach."

Hamilton likes to tell his players, "The true test is how a man fights through adversity," having lived that all his life. And there was no truer test of that than last season, when Florida State coaches truly believed they had a Final Four-caliber team but struggled thanks to various injuries that disrupted their chemistry and production.

The Seminoles went into Selection Sunday on the bubble, and there was some grumbling in town about Hamilton's long-term future -- especially after a disappointing second-round NCAA tournament exit as a No. 3 seed in 2017. Florida State made it in as a No. 9 seed and pulled one upset after another, making it to the Elite Eight against Michigan before losing 58-54. "We never stopped believing in ourselves," says guard Trent Forrest. "Once we got there, it was the most focused I've ever seen us. We all had a fear of going home, and we didn't want to get knocked out in the first round. We knew we had a good team that deserved to be in the Final Four or the Elite Eight."

In the immediate aftermath of the game, Hamilton took heavy criticism for his "the game was over" comments, dismissive of a question about failing to foul in the final minutes from CBS sideline reporter Dana Jacobson. He has not spoken much about it publicly beyond a statement in which he offered his apologies and wished he had done better. Jacobson said on Twitter that Hamilton was "nothing but professional with me," noting he answered the question rather than walking away.

Hamilton allowed his emotions in the moment to swallow him. It was the closest a Hamilton-coached team had ever gotten to the Final Four.

Expectations skyrocketed headed into the season with a veteran group returning. But Phil Cofer got hurt in the preseason and is just working his way back into form, and Terance Mann has a heel injury that hampered him in a loss to Virginia last week. Facing Duke is always tough, but the level of difficulty is even higher for any team not at full strength.

Hamilton will manage his players the way he always does. No matter what happens, he will be the same person in the locker room he always is, dispensing words of wisdom or perhaps some measure of inspiration. The goal will remain the same.

"Showing people our run last year wasn't just a fluke, that we're back and hungry again," Mann says. That comes from the top, starting with a man all too eager to keep pressing forward, to keep proving, over and over again, he can win.

"We don't stand on a ladder saying, 'We're No. 3!'" Hamilton says. "If you don't have the determination to want to be No. 1 ..."

He pauses.

"That's the fun part. It's what keeps you motivated."

Mfiondu Kabengele Went From Under-Recruited To A Star For Florida State

By Eric Storms

The Daily Orange

February 4, 2019

An hour and fifteen minutes away from Syracuse, down Interstate 81, stands the only school that offered Mfiondu Kabengele a basketball scholarship out of high school: Binghamton.

He was eager to play basketball and accept his first collegiate offer, knowing no Power five schools would contact him. But with guidance from his coach at Corpus Christi High School in Canada, Kabengele bypassed Binghamton's offer. Instead, he elected to attend the Bosco Institute in Indiana in hopes of playing for a better school.

Three years after taking a chance on himself, Kabengele's decision has paid dividends for No. 22 Florida State (16-5, 4-4 Atlantic Coast). After helping lead FSU to an Elite Eight appearance in 2018, the 6-foot-10 redshirt sophomore has become the Seminoles leading scorer (13 points per game) despite averaging under 20 minutes per contest.

With a 26-point outing against Boston College and a 24-point performance against then-No. 1 Duke, Kabengele has gained attention from professional scouts as he continues his third season with the program.

"He has worked on his body, his shooting and rebounding abilities, his ability to block shots, his knowledge of reading defenses to help on our team on offense," FSU head coach Leonard Hamilton said. "I think he has just scratched the surface of his potential."

Kabengele is the nephew of former NBA player and Hall of Famer Dikembe Mutombo, who is 7-foot-2. While some of his skills came naturally from his physique, it took a three-inch growth spurt to get recognized.

Slowly, the now 6-foot-10 forward gained attention from mid-major schools like St. Bonaventure. Soon, Florida State became the first Power five school to give him an offer. ESPN ranked him as a three-star prospect, and other schools soon followed suit.

But Florida State was the first Power five school to give him a chance. So he chose to play for the Seminoles. When he arrived, the freshman didn't expect to be a redshirt. But after some convincing, he "took it with open arms."

"I knew, when they recruited me, they were the first school to trust me," Kabengele said, "so I must go with their word because they have trust in me, and I have trust in them."

Last year, he was given a chance to play and thrived as a reliable sixth man.

In the postseason, he averaged 8.3 points in the middle, and lead the team with 5.8 rebounds and two blocks per game. He recorded his second career double-double in a 67-54 first round win over eighth-seeded Missouri and posted nine points and six rebounds over No. 1 seed Xavier to get to the Sweet Sixteen.

"He was a big part of (the Tournament run) because he came in and made sure there was no different energy, made sure that we were all on our Ps and Qs," FSU teammate PJ Savoy said. "He's kind of like the floor general cause he sees everything because he's in the back."

Kabengele came into his redshirt sophomore year playing even better. In the offseason, he focused on conditioning, citing how taxing setting ball screens, guarding the post and constantly crashing the rim is on his body. He also worked to improve his outside shot. With more playing time, his field goal percentage has increased nearly two percentage points this season. He's also shooting 33.3 percent from three and is close to eclipsing his 3-point season total from last year (10).

In a game against then-No. 1 Duke on Jan. 12, Kabengele posted 24 points and 10 rebounds, catching the eyes of NBA scouts catching the eyes of NBA scouts in attendance.

He tries not to focus on his NBA stock, instead honing in on his current role: to grab rebounds. When Kabengele attacks the glass, he feels the rest of his game will follow. He doesn't worry about proving he belongs, saying that kind of "baggage" would only detract from the game.'

"He's worked so hard for everything he has," Savoy said. "You can't let that go unnoticed."

Game 24 -- Florida State 88, Wake Forest 66

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. -- Christ Koumadje recorded his first career double-double, with a season-high 20 points and a career-high 12 rebounds, to help No. 17 Florida State rout Wake Forest 88-66. Koumadje played just 24 minutes but was efficient from start to finish. He made 10 of 12 shots from the floor as the Seminoles won their sixth straight game. While he has been an effective rebounder this season, Koumadje was a significant part of the game plan from the start against Wake Forest, scoring 12 points and pulling down eight rebounds as the Seminoles took a 38-31 halftime lead. Phil Cofer scored 13 points and Mfondu Kabengele had nine points and seven rebounds for Florida State, which enjoyed its most lopsided win against an ACC team this season. Chaundee Brown scored 20 points on 7 of 12 shooting and Brandon Childress had 11 points for Wake Forest. Wake Forest shot 38.6 percent (22 of 57) from the floor. Cofer and P.J. Savoy each made three 3-pointers as the Seminoles shot 38.5 percent (10 for 26) from beyond the arc. The Seminoles shot 56.5 percent (35 of 62) from the floor. They had 13 players score in the game as Florida State's bench produced 41 points. Florida State outrebounded Wake Forest 43-27. Koumadje had five of the Seminoles' 12 offensive rebounds.

Game 25 -- Florida State 69, Georgia Tech 47

ATLANTA, Ga. -- Christ Koumadje had 10 points and 12 rebounds as the Seminoles tied a school record with their seventh straight ACC win, 69-47, over Georgia Tech. Freshman Devin Vassell came off the bench to score a team-high 11 while playing in his hometown for the Seminoles. Seven Florida State players scored between seven and 11 points. Georgia Tech lost its seventh straight ACC game with another offensive struggle. Jose Alvarado broke out of a lengthy slump with 17 points, but the Yellow Jackets made just 8 of 36 shots from inside the 3-point arc. They're averaging 53.1 points in their skid after their seventh and eighth halves scoring 25 or fewer points. The 7-foot-4 Koumadje took just seven shots, making five. He was even more of a factor on the defensive end as he blocked three shots as Tech made just 6 of 28 in the paint. The Jackets' big men, James Banks III (two points) and Abdoulaye Gueye (five) made a combined 3 of 16 field goals. The teams were tied at 10 early before the Jackets fell into the first of multiple shooting freezes, and Florida State stretched the lead to 31-15 on a layup by Terance Mann with 4:27 left. Phil Cofer, David Nichols and Vassell each a pair of 3-pointers in the first half for FSU before Banks finally got loose for a dunk shortly before halftime to pull Tech within 34-23. The first time the Seminoles put together a seven-game ACC winning streak, in the 2011-'12 season, they went on to win the ACC Tournament. This also cemented a fourth consecutive season with 20 or more wins overall, matching a run from 2009-'12 that also was under Hamilton.
